WOMAN DIES AS FLAMES FOLLOW GAS EXPLOSION

Mrs. Margaret Muntis Meets Death In Flames Following Gas Explosion that Wrecks Home of Her Son, G. W. Muntis, Early Sunday

Muntis Badly Burned and His Wife Sustains Broken Wrist and Ankle In Jump from Second Story Window to Escape Flames

Mrs. Margaret Muntis, 89, met a terrible death at 5 o'clock Sunday morning in an explosion which wrecked the home of her son, G. W. Muntis, contractor, 428 Prospect Ave. and Mrs. G. W. Muntis suffered serious injuries when she leaped from an upstairs window.

The cause of the explosion is unknown. A blast, followed by spurts of flame that enveloped the entire building cannot be accounted for.

Lawrence Long, 422 Prospect Ave., next door neighbor, jumped from his bed when he heard the explosion and saw the flames as they swept thru the lower floor of the house.

JUMP FROM WINDOW.

A minute later he saw Mr. and Mrs. Muntis at an upstairs window yelling: "For God's sake, jump." Not having time to don more clothes, Mrs. Muntis ran to the front room window and leaped out, clad only in her night robes. Mr. Muntis followed.

In the jump Mrs. Muntis broke her ankle and her wrist and suffered injuries to her back. She crawled to the home of a neighbor, where aid was summoned, while Mr. Muntis tried in vain to rescue his aged mother who occupied a front room on the first floor.

In a few minutes the fire department was on the scene, but the flames crept with the blast, had almost destroyed the house.

Assistant Fire Chief Eyster crawled into the house and while kicking away debris in the aged woman's room he discovered her body in a crushed position in a corner near a window. She had made a futile attempt to escape.

Both of her limbs from her knee down were burned from her body, and her left arm was charred. The flames burned her head and shoulders.

WOMAN TRIED TO ESCAPE.

It appeared as if she had thrown several sheets about her, expecting to get out of the window before the fire reached her.

"GO STRAIGHT, BOYS," IS PLEA MADE BY FORGER

"Tell the boys and young men of Lima that if they've got a job, no matter what it is, do it and do it well; get straight, save their money and to keep good company," Bratt Seymour, alias John V. Monroe, alias Ronin Moore and alias Joseph Seely, master check forger, arrested Saturday night, said Monday in telling the story of his life to a Lima News reporter while the two sat on a cot in a cell at the city prison.

"I ran away from home in Kansas City when I was 12 years old," Seymour said. "Going to St. Paul, Minn., I secured a job as a piano player in a small theater for $12 a week. During the day I went to high school and graduated with honors. Later I attended Minnesota university, and in a year I could obtain a B. A. degree. I am a member of one of the leading fraternities at the Badger school, but will not say which one."

STARTED AS SALESMAN

"After leaving school I took a job as salesman for the Defiance Check Protection Co. in St. Paul.

"In eight months I got in trouble over a woman and was fired."

"That started me. I was broke and needed money. I cashed a bad check and beat it away from town."

"Since then I have carried my criminal operations into every state in the Union except eight, and have passed bad checks that netted me hundreds of dollars."

Speaking of Lima, he said this is considered an "open town" for forgers because of its many interurban lines.

"I came to Lima on March 6 and cashed up the town and chose Wapakoneta as the base of my operations."

"Here's how I work things."

SEYMOUR'S PLAN

"I went direct to the Hauss & Butler Co. in Wapak, where I asked for a number of letter heads, bill heads, envelopes and other office stationery."

"Then I sat down and wrote myself several letters, addressed to J. B. Stephens. One was trade talk, and the other was more personal, having to do with my business connections with the company.

"These letters I sent to Lima and had some cards printed bearing the name of J. B. Stephens, representing the Hauss & Butler Co."

"Equipped with these and order blanks from the Wapak firm, I started for Findlay. The next day I worked hard and 'sold' $21,00 worth of sugar to Findlay dealers.

"With their signed orders, I got bus with my checks, and cashed $159.50 worth before the day was over and skipped."

CASHED CHECKS HERE

"The next day I pulled the same trick here, representing myself as a clothing salesman. I collected $131 that day, and made away in good shape."

"How the police here traced me and finally nabbed me at Delphos while I was on my way back to Lima, Neb., I was never told.

"Once I was caught in Pennsylvania and served three months in the state penitentiary on being convicted. My term was six months, but because of my exemplary conduct was freed in half that time."

"I conducted the singing in the prison church chapel, and afforded piano selections at entertainments thru the week."

"Later I was arrested in Omaha after leading a straight life for three weeks—that was a long time for me. I was nabbed on my in a check, but was left free after taxing everything up. They did not know of my previous record," he said.

SEYMOUR'S PLAN

"I went direct to the Hauss & Butler Co. in Wapak, where I asked for a number of letter heads, bill heads, envelopes and other office stationery."

ASK LEGISLATION TO REQUIRE PERMIT FOR CUTTING THRU PAVEMENT

Adoption of legislation making it an offense to cut thru city pavement without first obtaining a permit from city authorities, will be asked of council Monday night by Service Director Elmer McClain.

McClain will point out that persons and concerns have in several instances cut thru pavements and left them in bad condition; that in several instances they have not been repaired and the city has been unable to find who was responsible. In one case a street light conduit was damaged and the excavation filled without the conduit being repaired or the city notified. When city employees traced the cause of the trouble they found the conduit stuffed with waste.

It is the practice in most cities to issue permits for cutting pavement, charge a fee and take means to insure proper repair or any damage done.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va.—(UPI)—The six men defendant in connection with the death of Albert C. Davis, who was killed during the Mine War in fight last May 14, were today found not guilty in the Miners' court of justice.

The defendants were found guilty of killing the Judge H. D. Bailey, according to the records. The six charged with assault on the men in the Mine War have been implicated in the death of Davis, and the police detectives failed to find any evidence.

The miners' court today

NEWS IS SHOUTED

News of the acquittal was shouted to the miners standing outside the court room and the announcement was received with cheering. Women and relatives of the Mine War men stood in the porch of the county jail and received their kin with open arms. Williamson residents received the verdict quietly and here were no demonstrations of any kind on the part of the miners, who had stood silent since early morning.

GAVIN, JURY SATURDAY

The case was given to the jury shortly after five o'clock Saturday afternoon. Judge H. D. Bailey presiding. The jury was remanded to full session and the court recessed for six hours. The verdicts returned, the men in the Mine War have been implicated in the death of Davis, and the police detectives failed to find any evidence.

The miners' court today

several hours. From newspaper men, several attorneys, court officials and defendants there were few people in the court room.

The court room of the defendants, noticeable on Saturday night, seemed to have given way to rest in the sun. In the meantime, counsel for the men began to arrange for bonds in case the jury disagreed. Trial date of 14th would be required to furnish bill in the sum of $1,000. It was understood that Judge Bailey was inclined to keep the jury balloting indefinitely if the twelve men were disagreed on what the defendant were convicted of, but that he would immediately discharge it if a honest deadlock existed as to innocence or guilt.

SEEK RETURN OF ROAD MONEY

Good Roads Boosters Organizing For Visit to Columbus

Clark Thomas and John Kaufman members of the chamber of commerce Good Roads committee are forming a company of 50 good road boosters to go to Columbus Wednesday to meet with State Highway Commissioner Leon C. Herkert and Gov. Harry Davis, to see if he can get Herkert's order taken off the books to allow 12 cent federal aid for road construction work in Allen, Marion and Seneca counties. Herkert is recruiting those whose names are between A and L, and Thomas is after those from M to Z.

The boosters, the county commissioners and representatives of the Harding Highway Association will point out the necessities of the Harding Highway from Lima to Kenton and Marion and show how the federal aid will have to be used to build state roads. The Governor will be asked to not cancel his order that by withdrawing federal aid money from the counties and using it to build state highways congress will pass the bill granting more federal aid money. The boosters from Lima want the "bird in the hand" and are willing to chance the "two in the bush" that congress may give them. They point out that the Harding Highway will be really a "safe high way."

DRIVE FOR FARM BUREAU MEMBERS

Campaign to Start March 28 Activities Outlined

A cleanup campaign for members for the Allen Co. section of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation will begin March 28 and continue for two days. J. O. Montague will be in charge.

Leaders met last year will be seen and solicited for the coming year. Present members will also be visited and everything possible done to put the membership on a firm basis.

Program work for the year is as follows: demonstrations of all kinds will be held throughout the county and the best way of handling farm problems will be shown.

More than 20 demonstrations of the way to pull out the non-laying hen from the poultry flock are planned. These will cover the entire county and there will be an opportunity for every chicken raiser to learn how this may be done. The Farm Bureau has employed a speaker to demonstrate this work to put on the demonstration.

A full record as to poultry costs and profits will be kept by several farmers. In this way the farm flock can be studied and many valuable lessons learned. Three of these demonstration farms are now in operation and the others will be working in the near future.

Livestock will be studied and methods for cutting down the amount of losses from disease and wrong feeding will be shown. There will be 20 demonstrations of the capsule method of treating hogs for intestinal worms with the county agent and specialists from Ohio State University as the instructors. Use of soy beans to provide protein in the hog ration where corn is the staple feed will be shown at 12 demonstrations. The planting of the right kind of soy beans with corn, that is to be hogged off, will remedy the situation. At least 50 members in the boys and girls jug clubs are expected.

Selection of seed corn when the parent stalks as well as the type of ear can be seen will be the subject of seven demonstrations. Wheat fertilizer will be studied by the farmers of Clark Co. some time during the year. Efforts to bring about the introduction of a number of new varieties of wheat, which have proven successful in other counties are being made. Also there will be demonstrations of the proper way of treating wheat to prevent stinking grain losses.

This is only the regular program work. There are many miscellaneous activities being carried on now and planned for the future. Among these are legislation, fast food day, the wool problem and the various questions on the collecting and handling of farm crops.

The Space No Man Can Measure! Flying Forty Million Years To the Nearest Star

This picture helps us to realize what our minds hardly understand—the wonderful size of the universe. Such trains as these, which dash past us almost before we can see them, would take 177 years to travel from the earth to the sun if there were a railroad on which they could travel a mile a minute and never stop, and a train starting from the earth for the nearest star would not arrive for forty million years! The figures on these trains give the time it would take the trains, traveling all the time at sixty miles an hour, to reach the planets.

ALL THE MONEY YOU HAVE CANNOT BUY TWO WORDS IN THESE COLUMNS

CAN'T GET AWAY WITH IT

APPREHENDED Saturday night in Allen-co as he was about to depart for Chicago, after arriving from Detroit, a confessed forger who admits that he applied himself to his nefarious vocation in many states and got away with large sums of money, now sits behind prison bars here, at the end of his string, as 'twere.

His case is only another item in proof of the fact that criminals can't get away with it.
They may evade arrest and punishment for a short time, but eventually they are caught.
They become careless and bold and then it happens. It isn't presumed that every stranger who comes to a city is a criminal or that he has a crooked game to work. For that reason it is comparatively easy for thieves and forgers to migrate from one state to another and from one community to the next, without exciting suspicion.

Particularly is this true when the criminal represents himself to be what he is not, in aid of his game. Posing as a traveling salesman, with more than a half dozen trunks and grids, the man arrested Saturday night and who will very likely serve a term in the penitentiary, had little or no difficulty, he says, in passing spurious checks most anywhere. He knew he was taking chances and he knew that inevitably he would be caught. But he probably became accustomed to the thought and gave up worrying about the day of reckoning.

It has arrived for him as it always comes for those who persist in wrongdoing. Retribution is an unerring nemesis. Sooner or later it overtakes those who choose the path to easy money. The fact that statistics show very few criminals evade detection and arrest should be the strongest kind of lesson for those who are tempted to wrongdoing.

Go straight, young man. If you're crooked, the world will soon find it out. And with exposure, comes punishment, degradation and remorse.

WHERE YOUR MONEY GOES

IT is assumed that you have sent in your income tax return, if you were included in the favored group of citizens whose privilege it is to help support the government thru the paying of taxes, says the Dayton News. Starting on this assumption, therefore, it may be of interest to you to know how every dollar that you pay for income taxes is spent. You are as much responsible as anybody else for the way it is spent, so there isn't much chance for you to criticize constructively. Herbert D. Brown, chief of the United States bureau of efficiency, analyzes the expenditures of every dollar paid to the government thru the income tax route as follows: For past wars (pensions, compensation, interest on public debt, etc., including expenses incident to federal control of railroads.)
68 cents; for present defense (army and navy.) 20 cents; for the salaries of the president, the vice president, members of congress, justices of the supreme court and all other civilian federal office-holders, cost of harbor improvements, good roads, education and all peacetime activities of the government, 12 cents.
This analysis is based upon the appropriations for the fiscal year 1921. Wars, past and contemplated for the future, it is observed thru a study of this analysis, require 88 cents out of every dollar paid into the federal treasury, leaving 12 cents out of each dollar for ordinary or peace time expenses. Out of this 12 cents we pay for education, public improvements, salaries, etc. Is it any wonder that a people whose natural trend is toward peace are anxious for themselves and everybody else in the world to reduce that proportion of public taxes paid in and out for war. Common sense dictates that it would be good business to reverse the figures.

OLD SCISSORS SAYS:

Cheer up! Every beaten path once was rough and hard to travel.

Archaeologists claim that men existed on earth 15,000 years ago. Maybe they are the ones who invented the six-day bicycle race.

EUREKA.

I figured and figured and figured
Until I was weary and lame,
But, in order to get the answer,
I decided that I'd die game.

I used many teams of paper
And a barrel or so of ink,
And my brains were frazzled,
And both eyes were on the blink.

I figured along like a teller
Upon the very last night,
And then I arrived at an answer,
And I hope the darned thing is right.

But if the eternal collector
My tax return doth contest,
He'll still have to carve on my tombstone:
"Here's one guy who did his best."

Mr. John D. Rockefeller, in an address recently, said to the young men that they should use great care in picking their wives. In his opinion there are few things as important as that. We do not care to disagree with Mr. Rockefeller, whose advice no doubt is good, but do young men pick their wives? Personally we have always believed that their wives pick them.
We don't believe that the average young man has any more to do with his proposal than some young man in the next state. Many a young man believes he is doing the proposing when the whole thing is done by the girl. She has decided she will have him a long time before he stutters out his offer to become her meal ticket for life.

You hear folks speak of days of yore, of the "good old days" that went before the coming of the past decade or two; and some folks like to weep and moan, and gnash their teeth and loudly groan because those "good old days" of yore are thru. Most old folks speak of meat and drink of yore so cheap that young folks think it cost a pittance then to live for years; while some old boys will reminiscence of dollar banquets with some Miss who brazenly exposed her naked ears. A friend of mine who's old and gray will tell you of a long gone day when he could siphon cups of sparkling cheer; and then with groans that drive one mad, his faded eyes tear-stained and sad, he speaks of governments that stop his beer. My maiden aunt who's tall and thin bemoans our girlies' brazen air of cutting off their dresses at the knee; and she recalls "the good old days" when maidens devised a hundred ways to shield their ankles so no man could see.

But the "good old days" were slow, I'll say! For me, I'm glad I live today.

Hank Ford has been exposed so often lately it's a wonder he doesn't catch cold.

A TALK TO EDUCATORS

Education has proved a fairly good thing for the head. Let's try it on the body now.

In spite of the old maxim some school authorities still appear to think a sound mind can be built into an unsound body. At any rate the average common school offers every advantage and encouragement to the development of the mind and none or practically none for the development of the body. In the average school right now fairly well trained instructors in the various departments of mental training are employed, but if anything akin to physical education is attempted at all it is probably entrusted to the tender merceries of an instructor inadequately trained or without training for the work.

It will not do to try to bluff this thing thru. Physical education on paper will never meet the requirement. You are intimately and perhaps influentially concerned with the administration of education in your community. You probably have at least a half-hearted belief that something in the way of physical training would be a good thing for your own children and others in school. Do you not wish to give the children the advantage of such training just as you give them the advantage of instruction in mathematics, English history and other useful subjects?

There is one way and only one in which physical education can be invested with the dignity which it deserves in the school curriculum, and that is by giving the pupil adequate credits for the time devoted to acquiring his physical training; credits on a par with those allowed for the other essentials of the school course.
Unless this is done it is useless to pretend that your school has a good physical education department, for without fair credit for physical training the boy or girl is almost certain to look upon the whole arrangement as the farce you have made it, in short, as "physical torture" or "farcical culture."

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive colored tablets are the result of Dr.
Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel.
They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums.
So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "log" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

CORINNE GRIFFITH IN A NEW PLAY OF INTEREST

"It Isn't Being Done This Season" Pronounced Capable as Entertainer

Thomas Meighan With Us Again — The Orpheum Bill — "Unseen Forces" Clever

(By ESTHER WAGNER.)

"It Isn't Being Done This Season" is the catchy title for Corinne Griffith's new picture, and while she has had better stories than this one, the picture in question is sure to please and mildly entertain. Here's the why and wherefore.

Marcia Venner was summoned from boarding school account the seriousness of her mother, who was also a stranger to her. Mother had less than an hour to live when her daughter arrived, but she was not too far gone to caution Marcia about it.

"My dear," she said, "don't trust me. Make it your business to meet me when you can use, men of wealth and power. And for Heaven's sake don't marry for mere love. A cautious woman like you can, with a little skillful playing, win the greatest man living. My daughter, go to it."

Marcia met two men, one of them rich, old, but with no thought of marriage, the other, young, handsome, with high hopes and low funds.

Marcia really loved young Lawton, but her mother's advice had taken root and she married the wealthy import, George Hunt.

The honeymoon takes them to Europe, where they are the guests of Alf Roy, who controls the rug industry. While there, Marcia, by a clever trick, learns that her husband's love not sincere. He reluctantly dies, and she marries the young and handsome lover, who has come into an inheritance and has a job, again they go to Smyrna, for their honeymoon, and Marcia uses the same clever trick to test her new husband's love. Of course it tests 100 per cent, thus proving that there are husbands who really love their wives.

Miss Griffith's gowns are marvelous all thru the picture, the she wears 'em too short to be graceful. Webster Campbell as young Lawton is splendid; Sally Crute as the mother is even better. The interior scenes are beautifully exotic and the entire production is lavishly staged.

So, even if the story is a trifle incoherent at times, you will like it because it is a Corinne Griffith picture.

"It Isn't Being Done This Season" is appearing at the Sigma theatre today and until Thursday.

Conrad In Quest of His Youth

HERE'S Thomas Meighan again after an absence of some time. And it seems that his new starring vehicle was worth while waiting for, at that.

Mr. Meighan is cast as Conrad, a returned soldier. Conrad returned to London, bearing wound stripes and all the insignia of brave service, and to Dobson, his faithful servant, who was really the only one to whom it mattered greatly whether or not Conrad did return.

He was back among familiar scenes, but nothing seemed the same. Old friends bored him; even the old homestead, whither he went in a wild desire to enjoy life, palled.

The pretty girl who had been his first sweetheart, loomed up as the portly wife of a jealous husband, who looked like a patent medicine ad, and the mother of numerous children. Even the beautiful Mrs. Adalie, whom he had loved madly when he was 17, was different.

An old, old man, felt Conrad, until unexpectedly, at a lonely way station between trains—things do happen like that you know—a pair of dark eyes looked into his.

And Conrad found his youth.

An intriguing, introspective, whimsical study, with a haunting minor quality. The story, from the pen of Leonard Muriel, has been exquisitely screened and ably interpreted by an all-star cast.

"Conrad in Quest Of His Youth," is the Faurot's feature picture.

The Orpheum

TAKEN as a whole, the Orpheum's bill is nothing to rave about, altho it is good in spots. To some, however, it might prove ideal. Individually, here's the list:

Dubois and Seelye are billed as comedy jugglers. They can handle nameless articles quite dexterously, and the lady in the company has a voice.

The Harveys have the regulation sing-talk-dance act that is not half bad. The couple have personality and good voices and a pleasing little Chinese number that is spendid.

Seamore and Larson have one of the best acts of the six. They are two young men, dancing comedians, and their performance is first-rate.

Powier, Sheridan and company is the headine act. This is a beautifully staged and costumed offering, with a clever young man at the piano, and two pretty girls who sing and dance. Their music is new and snappy, their voices reasonably good and their dancing unique, with plenty of the shoulder variety.

Speaker Lewis is an excellent comedian and in his impersonation of a speaker of the House, he is a riot. His humor is drawn from the wells of politics, public affairs and national conditions, always acceptable stuff.

Steel-Fay and Fisher, a trio of tight wire artists, are good of their kind and furnish plenty of thrills.

Unseen Forces

HERE'S a picture that is decidedly different from the usual run of silver sheet attractions. If you're a believer in spiritualism, mindreading or whatever you want to call it, you're going to be impressed beyond words. If you're a skeptic, like this critic, you may laugh and call it a lot of silly rot.

The love-power that brings man to woman, mate to mate, etc., is the theme around which the story is built. Miriam Holt is a girl who can see around the corners. As a child she had loved Clyde Brunton, but when he returned to claim her, he found her in the arms of another. Heartbroken he marries a shallow-minded creature who had wanted wealth and position. Years later Miriam comes to the city to aid humanity by using her wonderful gift of seeing ahead. Clyde, now unhappy with Winifred, his wife, renews his love and devotion, but Winifred, like the cat she is, will not give him his freedom. Now watch Miriam work. She communes with the spirits and digs up a past for the beautiful Winifred and with her unseen force, brings her to the man who had wronged her, years and years ago. And so she gives Clyde his freedom and he is Miriam's forever after.

Perhaps I should not have let you in on the story so completely but even in the know you the outcome, you'll enjoy the picture. It's positively weird and uncanny, two qualities that should make any audience appreciate it.

And the cast? Not a single has-been—but a row of stars that are seldom seen in a single production

Sylvia-Sreamer makes a beautiful and convincing Miriam; Rosemary They as Winifred is prettily disdainful and haughty; Conrad Nagel as Clyde is lovely and Robert Cain as Arnold Crane, the man to whom Winifred is finally drawn, is above reproach.

The snow scenes, the rural backgrounds and the orchard in the first reel are all beautiful. The photography and direction are excellent.

"Unseen Forces" is a picture to be seen and appreciated. Recommended. It is appearing at the Regent theatre.

Faurot — "Century Midnight Whirl"

Gaiety and merriment and color are dominating elements in the famous "Century Midnight Whirl" which will be at the Faurot next Wednesday night.

In this novel theatrical offering local amusement patrons will have something different from anything ever seen in this city. The "Whirl" is a genuine and original New York roof show. It was on the Century Roof for three years. It was foremost entertaining the smart and fashionable set and also the out of town visitors who wished to see how society leaders of whom they had read and heard enjoyed themselves. New York's chief enjoyment was on the Century Roof where the "Whirl" with its wit and sparkle, its spirited music and dancing, its beautiful girls in handsome costumes and its gorgeous color effects were a fascination and a delight. Now the "Whirl" is coming here. It will be the first time a genuine roof show has ever been presented in this city. It will be offered as a regular theatrical attraction at usual theater hours. The company that John Henry Mears is sending here in the "Whirl" is of exceptional worthiness. It is genuinely an all-star cast. It is headed by Richard Carle, Blanche Ring.

OPHEUM-Frawley-Sheridan Co.

Charles Winniger, Winona Winter, Jay Gould, Maxson and Brown, the Bennett Twins, Virginia Birmingham, and Grace Cronin. In addition there is the famous "Millionaires' Chorus."

This chorus has been described as the most beautiful assemblage of girls ever seen. Each member has distinct talent. The "Whirl" is exactly the sort of entertainment for those who enjoy merriment and fun and laughter and color and all else that makes for jollity.

AT THE MAJESTIC:

Griffith's "The Love Flower" is the feature art action today at the Majestic theatre. Richard Barthelmess heads the all star cast.

AT THE RIALTO:

Douglas Fairbanks is starred in "Double Trouble" at the Rialto theatre.

Known story by Zane Grey, is the star today. Also a Larry Simon comedy and a local jazz orchestra.

This little flapper frock of navy taffeta is just such a model. It is much ruffled and has a short full skirt fastened at low waistline to a snug bodice. Biscuit colored satin trim the two diminutive little slit pockets on the bodice and forms the cuffs on the long, tight sleeves. The collar is the popular Peter Pan style which is a feature of all the youthful flapper clothes for spring. This frock is very pretty made up in gray with red, rose or navy satin trimmings.

FEARS FIANCÉE IS UNRELIABLE

(BY SUSIE SMART)

Dear Miss Smart:
I am a girl 20 years old and am engaged to a man several years my senior. He is wonderful to me and seems to have splendid qualities, but he does not seem to be able to give any money. His salary is quite good but he never

Yours are certainly in a very embarrassing and difficult situation, but since you care so deeply for your fiance, I would not advise you to break the engagement until you are quite certain that it is impossible for him to save money and that you would be happy with him. Try in every way to improve the situation.

Perhaps you do not realize that just at present it is not the easiest thing in the world. Prices are very high and have been for some time.

Probably you never realized that you were at fault in lending your fiance money. Of course, I understand in what spirit you gave it to him. You were doing it as an act of kindness and as you love him, you wish to do anything to help him. However, it is weak and unmanly of him to accept money from you. It might not amount to much now, but it is doing anything but helping to strengthen his character. If it is thru carelessness and mismanagement that your fiance cannot save sufficient money and live within his income, he should be made to suffer the consequences. His sense of pride should certainly begin to have some effect upon him. You, his fiance, of course, can have the greatest influence upon him. Encourage him in his work. Tell him that you know he is capable of splendid things and try to persuade him to strive for a higher position. "to hitch his wagon to a star," so to speak. Perhaps it would be well for him to work on a budget system; to keep a record of his expenditures and to live within his income.

If, after you have exhausted every means to influence your fiance to greater efforts; if your love, patience and inspiration fail to help him, I think you would be taking the only proper step in considering the future happiness of both yourself and fiance.

Dear Miss Smart:
Will you please tell me how a girl should entertain a boy friend at her home? (1) Are two girls between 15 and 18 too young to go to the movies alone after dark? (2) What is right in a girl's party? (3) What is the right in holding a simple game which could be played at a party?

PEARL WHITE:
(1) Do not make too many plans as to how you might entertain a boy friend at your home. It makes it just a little embarrassing. Just let something offer itself. If you dance you might enjoy part of the evening in dancing, in a friendly game of cards or in making candy. (2) It is well that girls of that age go to the movies early in the evening so that they would not have to be on the streets alone at a late hour. It is very dangerous for young girls to be unaccompanied at night. (3) For very light refreshments the usual ice cream, cake, almonds, mint or chocolates and coffee, if desired, are always very delicious. (4) There is not sufficient space in this column to plan entertainment for a party. Contests are usually enjoyed. Look in the various women's magazines and you can receive splendid information and suggestions for entertainment at a social gathering.

THE PARADISE MYSTERY

By J. B. FLETCHER

Presently the group stood around a door at which Mitchington knocked gently, and it was on their grave and watchful faces that a tall, clean-shaven, very solemn-looking man gazed in astonishment as he opened the door and started back. He went white to the lips and his hand fell trembling from the latch as Mitchington strode in and the rest crowded behind.

"Now then, Fladgate!" said Mitchington, going straight to the point and watching him narrow-eyed while the detective approached him closely on the other side. "I want you and a word with you, at once. Your real name is Flood; what have you to say to that? And—It's no use beating about the bush—what have you to say about this Braden affair, and your share with Pollard in it, whose real name is Wraye. It's all come out about the two of you. If you've anything to say, you'd better say it."

The verger, whose black gown lay thrown across the back of a chair, looked from one face to another with frightened eyes. It was very evident that the suddenness of the descent had completely unnerfed him. Ransford's practiced eyes saw that he was on the verge of a collapse.

"Give him time, Mitchington," he said. "Pull yourself together," he added, turning to the man. "Don't be frightened; answer these questions for God's sake, gentlemen!" gasped the verger. "What—what isn't it? What am I to answer? Before God, I'm as innocent as—as any of you about Mr. Brake's death upon my soul and honor!"

"You know all about it," insisted Mitchington. "Come, now, isn't it true that you're Flood, and that Foy's Wraye, the two men whose necks you got Brake convicted of?"

"That's true," he said at last. "But in that affair I—I wasn't the principal. I was only—only Wraye's butler. I was, I wasn't responsible. And when Mr. Brake came to me when I met him that morning—

He paused, still looking from one another of his audience as if endeavoring their belief.

"As sure as I'm a living man, gentlemen!" he suddenly burst out, his willing hand in Mr. Brake's. "I'll tell you the exact truth. I'll tell you the truth of it when you say I did have been thankful to tell you a time, but for—for Wraye, it wouldn't let me at first, and after that it got complicated. It was his way. That morning—when Mr. Brake was found dead—he had occurred to go up into that gallery under the directory. I suddenly came on him face to face. He recognized me. And—I'm telling you the solid, absolute truth, gentlemen!—he had no sooner recognized me than he attacked me, seizing me by the arm. I hadn't recognized him, at first. I had when he had hold of me. I tried to shake him off, tried to get him; he struggled—I don't know what he wanted to do—he began to cry out—it was a wonder he hadn't heard in the church below, and he would have been only the organ was being played rather loudly. In the struggle he slipped—it was just by that open doorway—and before I could do more than grasp him, he shot thru the opening and fell! It was sheer, pure accident, settlement! Upon my soul, I hadn't a bad intention of harming him."

"And after that?" asked Mitchington, at the end of a brief silence.

"I saw Mr. Polliot—Wraye," continued Flood. "Just afterward, that is. I told him; he bade me keep quiet until we saw how things went. Later he forced me to be silent. What could I do? As things were, Wraye had have disclaimed me—I shouldn't have had a chance, so I held my tongue."

"Now then, Collishaw?" demanded Mitchington. "Give us the truth out that. Whatever the other was, that was murder!"

"Before God, gentlemen!" he swore. "I know no more—at first, little more—about that man than you do! I'll tell you all I do know. Wraye and I of course, met now and then and talked about this. It got to our ears at last that Collishaw knew something. My own impression is that he saw what occurred between me and Mr. Brake—he was working somewhere up there. I wanted to speak to Collishaw, but he wouldn't let me, he made me leave it to him. A little later, he told me he'd squared Collishaw with fifty pounds."

Mitchington and the detective exchanged looks.

"Wraye—that's Polliot—paid Collishaw fifty pounds, did he?" asked the detective.

"He told me so," replied Flood. "To hold his tongue. But I'd scarcely heard that when I heard of Collishaw's sudden death. And as to what that happened, or who—who who brou't it about—upon my soul, gentlemen, I know nothing."

Whatever I may have thought, I never mentioned it to Wraye—never!

"I—I daren't! You don't know what a man Wraye is! I've been under his thumb most of my life and—what are you going to do with me?"

"He's upstairs!" he whispered. "Up there! He'll bluff it out if he can, but he's just admitted to me—

"Mitchington thrust Bryce aside, almost roughly.

"We know all about that," he said. "I shall have a word or two for you later! Come on, now!"

The men crowded up the stairway to Polliot's snuggy, Bryce, wondering at the inspector's words and manner, following closely behind him and the detective and Glassdale, who led the way. Polliot was standing in the middle of the room, one hand behind his back, the other in his pocket.

And as the leading three entered the place he brought his concealed hand sharply round and presenting a revolver at Glassdale fired point-blank at him.

"You've no hand in this?" he demanded.

HER OWN CAREER

By PHYLIS PHILLIPS

TWO CODES

"I am not holding any briefs for the old, old order, Gwenda," continued John Neale, "but I still maintain that a girl like you makes a grave mistake in trusting her name and self to the tender mercies of a man like Fedya Stepnov. In the first place, the code of a Polish man, especially an artist, are entirely different from our own. What is quite wrong in our country is the usual way for a man to make love to a girl, and it is not considered out of the way for a man to make love to a girl in any way that pleases him, and under any circumstances. But you know how we stop and think these things over, here in our country."

"As far as I can make out most men are the same, under their skins," answered Gwenda coolly. "I cannot see that being a Pole makes Fedya any more dangerous to women than a man from, say, Peoria or Pittsburgh! That sounds too much like prejudice, after all."

"And yet what about the fair Manuel?" asked John. "I am not trying to say he is all bad, because I know that he isn't, but I do still say that Manuel's code concerning women is different from my own, which is that of the average, clean American."

SOX TEAM IS RIDDLED BY REDS, 7-4

FORT WORTH Tex.—With Capt. Eddie Collins glimpsing the proceedings from the side lines, Kid Gleason's White Sox first team again bowed in defeat before the Cincinnati Reds at Panhandle park Sunday 7 to 4.

The Keystone King arrived on the scene from Philadelphia just as the combat was starting and spent the afternoon sizing up the blockers who will rub elbows with him this season.

Base hits were exploded with marked regularity throughout this matinee, the Moran man coming a total of 15 and the Pale Horse 12.

REDS WILLOW KERR'S STUFF

The Reds collected 11 drives during the first five innings while Dick Kerr grazed the slab and bumped Shovel Hodge's delivery for four more in the last four rounds. Larson, mired with wallows registered against Kerr's sputtering enabled the National leaguers to gain a comfortable advantage.

Gleason's charges slammed Ray Fisher for five hits in four innings and piled seven in the last five sessions, while Lynn Brenton, late of Seattle, was on the job. Jim Falk, the Texas university star, led the Sox attack with a double and two singles.

Harry Hooper was expected to report to the club at Waxahachie tomorrow morning when the kid will start work on his infield. RICKARD HAS 11 DAYS LEFT IN WHICH TO NAME SITE FOR BIG SO

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK.—Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier probably will know where they are to swap punches before the end of the week.

Tex Rickard has 11 more days in which to think over the best place of the three or four under consideration, but it is likely that he will not make use of the full 30 days' grace granted him by the fighters.

"I am not ready to make the announcement yet but it may come within a few days now," Rickard said this morning.

Discussion of the site with Rickard is thought to have brought Jack Kearns, manager of the champion back to town. Kearns blew in suddenly from the "road" where he was appearing with Dempsey in a vaudeville act. He conferred with Rickard.

"We did talk a few things over about the place for the big go," Kearns said, "but I am not at liberty to give the details."

He dropped the gentle hint, however, that New Yorkers would have to spend some carfare to see the bout.

Members of the boxing commission maintain that they have talked with Rickard about the fight and that they will have nothing to say until he makes formal application for a license to bout in the state.

Contention has been made that the commission could not refuse to grant Rickard a license to stage the fight in New York, that the law does not prohibit a heavy championship fight, etc.

Rickard might force the commission him a license if he could show that the agreed scale of prices would be adhered to. The bout would be conducted strictly in accordance with all the regulations. But the nor Miller might step in.

BETTER BUSINESS IS PREDICTED

B. C. Forbes, Expert, Sees Brighter Days Ahead

EXPECTS RAIL ADJUSTMENT

High Money Rates Will Be Worn Down

(BY B. C. FORBES)

Spring opens today. I strongly believe this season will witness distinct improvement in business, in investment and in monetary conditions.

I believe, too, that each succeeding quarter of 1921 will bring an increasing measure of prosperity.

What are the chief reasons for expecting betterment?

Before spring ends, the railroad situation, now so disturbing, should be well cleared up. Indications point to the lowering of wages without any general strike, distinct improvement thereafter in net earnings, expansion of traffic and reductions in some freight rates. As that unfolds, the security market should be greatly heartened.

Spring unquestionably will bring definite action on steel prices and steel wages. It is impossible to comprehend the full and varied extent of hesitancy and inaction caused by the uncertainty over the course which Judge Cary will follow. Steel plays a part in such a bewildering variety of industries that the deadlock in it has an injurious effect in unnumbered directions. That a deadlock does exist is proved by the virtual cessation of ordering and the collapse of output.

The Niagara of gold pouring into this country from many parts of the world must shortly wear down the high money rates. The inflow already exceeds $100,000,000 since January 1, forming the basis for anywhere between half-a-billion and a billion additional credit.

This, combined with falling prices, cannot fail to cause the monetary emergency which has prevailed so long.

Despite the total failure of the German indemnity negotiations and the marching of the allied troops into neutral German territory, the European exchange has displayed a remarkable strength. Manipulation may have played some part in forcing up the rates on certain countries, but the inclusion implied is that the European outlook is interpreted by international financial interests as having improved very substantially.

The index numbers reveal that wholesale commodity prices in this country continue to decline at the rate of fully 1-1/2 per cent weekly. The Spring months should, therefore, in something toward restoring the purchasing power of both our enormous agricultural population and our industrial workers whose wages have been or are going to be reduced. The full influence of lower living costs cannot be gauged, so much will be accomplished in the lightening of the burdens of labor, business and agriculture alike. The fact, too, upon our ability to compete in the world's markets is a consideration of magnitude, because already American manufacturers find themselves out here and there by European competitors who pay for their materials and their labor in depreciated currencies.

The winter weather has been unusually favorable for agriculture, so that spring should bring encouraging crop news—a matter of infinite importance.

CAINS TEN POUNDS ON 2 BOTTLES

Akron Man Says He Never Felt Stronger in His Lite Years Since Taking Tonic.

"I have not finished my second bottle of Tonic and have gained ten pounds. I was the captain of a team of T. E. Morris, 177 Park St., Akron, O. well known in the neighborhood. I am 50 years old."

My stomach was in such a fix that for several days I could hardly eat my food. I had no appetite and the very sick food made me ill. I was even nervous and could not rest at night. I lost weight and strength until I was almost weak.

But Deco has made me feel like a different man. My appetite is now normal and I feel well and strong. I am not nervous and can sleep well at night. I lost weight and strength until I was almost weak.

Take Deco the time of the year. It is a tonic and will give you what you want.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless) and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonsful will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It takes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly and leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Many Lima people have chosen Peppen, and their statement is it is published in local papers every day after day. Inasmuch as my statements have been published from people who live in three or four different cities, it is to note what the residents of other cities are saying. In Indianapolis, Ind., one retail drug store sold over 100 bottles of Peppen in the last few months.

Mrs. Elizabeth Plunkett, 22 S. 4th Street, Indianapolis, is a good example of what people are doing in her city. Her story is low.

Any person who sees me now would say I'm looking fit for ten years. I suffered with constipation, I honestly believe I would be still suffering if I hadn't taken Peppen.

Previously my intestinal passage would stop up, and then I would feel as if I was drowning in my throat. I am told that this means it's a very dangerous and will affect my organs in the body. It finally affected my kidneys and bladder.

My sister is a doctor in Peppen, and as she recommended it so highly I tried it. In the result that I am now feeling.

Mrs. Plunkett's name is the same. Peppen has got it or a large amount in building. She is well known in Indianapolis and her experience is of special significance.
